

mob the umpire!

Hing Lee, Ypsilanti's Chinese laundryman, isn't worrying over the Chino-Japanese war. He says, Let 'em fight, China got plenty men. Neither is he deeply interested in Chinese success. He thinks her defeat would overthrow the Tartar dynasty and restore the native Chinese dynasty to the control of the Flowry Kingdom, and that the natives would welcome any foreign influence rather than the Tartar rule.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

As the meadow mole has become such